You pave the way through thick, stale air

Shower a maiden rain

And in this cascade of memories

You wonder

What is the day?

Like this feels, nothing ever will

Life reveals, kicks in and heals me for a day

So I guess I paved my way

Never questioning means nor meaning

And in this cascade

Aching for significance

What is the day?

When doubt creeps to the surface, with

Sunlight brushed away

Then, in these lonely moments, tell me,

What is a day?

Like this feels. nothing ever will

Life reveals, kicks me and heals me for a day

Like this feels (without a word or whisper)

Nothing ever will

Life reveals (without a what or why)

He walks in and heals me for a day
