Soon, this year's winter will come And you who were by my side isn't here What should I think? I wonder if I can't think "I want to see you"?

We didn't like each other, right But we just kinda started dating I was pulled in by something I didn't have And we both started liking each other

I knew not to wish for the cliché
"Let's stay together forever"

We're walking different paths But I can't get you out of my head
If you would turn around once again I don't need anyone but you

"I want to see you" but I don't know either the town you live in, or how to tell you This winter, with whom and what are you doing?

When I think about how, for sure I'm the only one who has feelings, it's painful

The time and places we spent together You disappear from my words and actions You've become something important to me I realized it after we separated

Back then I loved love, right
But now I can hold my head high and say that I like you

I want to return to the time that we innocently laughed together As I stare at the window My overflowing tears melts the snow scene that I saw with you
Soon, this year's winter will come And you who were by
my side isn't here
What should I think? I wonder if I can't think "I want to see you"?
The snow begins to fall
