"Who You Are"

He waited all these years
Lived in dreams and fears
Hoping for a change that never comes Mirror, mirror on the wall
He'd seen nothing at all
An emptiness inside banged the drums
Like a snake shedding it's skin wondering what and where I've been
I was lost among some scriptures written in sand
Searching for the sun
Not knowing what he'd done
A roly-poly toy from pain to joy
A voice inside his head
The last words have been said
He set his sails but never found no Helen of Troy
The bonds that didn't last turned into ghosts of christmas past
Until the day I woke up to myself again
Tell me, tell me who you are
You're only human
You're not a superstar
Tell me, tell me who you are
No more running away from the way you are
Tell me, tell me who you are
You're only human
You're not a superstar
You gotta tell me, tell me who you are Outside - Inside
Inside - Outside
