Ever unexplored road
On which the madness walks
Opened in front of you
Waiting for your first step
Without hesitation you stepped
On the path of life and death
You were infatuated
With the glitter of her bright self

With the first step came the winds
Which dispelled all fears
The second step brought the anger of all rains
Washing away doubts from your face
With the third days and nights became brighter
Brightening and abiding your soul
Fourth step restored four seasons
Fire warmed and opened the heart

But she hid herself then
Away from him and night
She left the projection of herself
He woke up and saw
An empty night and a lonely shadow
The heart squeezed again
He was seized by thoughts
