She lives across from a factory
But she would swear it's a villa in southern France She'll tell ya if you do it do it good 'cuz it just might be you last Chance
She goots a ring in her pocketsets Because it's good to be invisible sometimes She's only happy when she's naked and she wears it like a magineau line
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself Sometimes I wish she'd remind me how happy and oblivious I always been 'cuz
Then I know I'll always be alright She's got a sun on her ceiling just So every morning it's the first thing that she sees She won't go home with the president but she might go home with me
We're like a couple of fortresses and you would swear that what you get is What you see

Sometimes we get intoxicated and we stumble past the guard while he's Sleeping
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of how happy and oblivious I always been
'Cuz then I'd know I'll always be alright
I'll hook you up if you wondering
She could be someone you should meet She's kinda short and very pretty and she's not a hell of a lot like me
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of myself
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me
Sometimes I wish she'd remind me of how happy and oblivious I always been
'Cuz then I'd know I'll always be alright
