Did you think I'd change my mind
I know you think I watch you sleep
But my heart will never keep
Could you ever act your age

I'd act jealous, but I'd hate to make your week
So no more you will with me
I find it hard to sleep, cause I know what you need
I know you need your faith, so I'm killing you with lies

Fooled you, fooled myself without even trying
That's over now
Fooled you, and never even got to say I'm sorry
You were sorry first

Well it's worth about as much as mine, dear
It's only rivaled by the burning summertime
And the winter of blue cold feet
I find it hard to sleep, cause I know what you need
I know you need your faith, so I'm killing you with eyes

Fooled you, fooled myself without even trying
That's over now
Fooled you, and never even got to say I'm sorry
You were sorry first

You know what sorry's really worth

I won't hurt you, I won't even pray at all
Better yet if I'm all alone
Shredding prayers is like shredding paper
Most, I'm not falling for you, I'm not falling for you
Not you
