Clenched fists, I've given all I have to give. Is it enough, It never was enough. I need to breathe and just keep watching. Don't speak, I can't stand to hear it, No not anymore. I need to breath and just keep watching. I tried to save us, you lied on the ground. You live in fear, a lack of love. The ice is wearing thin, and the tensions are about to heat. I've felt this way for far too long, but you refuse to bend. You shook the ground we laid in, and ripped the roots out of my grasp. I watched it all fall away. You refuse to bend, the ice is wearing thin.
