We've Been Strangers - LYRICS

All lyrics by David Johnson

Ocean

When you find out you're afraid of the ocean
Waves splash, they touch your skin
But you can't, you can't see where they end
On the shoreline, you see an endless horizon
Worlds clash as the tide comes in
And you don't, don't know where to begin
Over and over

Coming closer
Fading further away
All with the same glimpse of the unknown
As waves crash over and over
In and out of control
And you just don't know how deep
How deep this goes

When you find out you're afraid of the ocean

Doubt swims in, it pulls the current
And your mind, your mind gets caught in the spin
Over and over

When you find out you're overcome by the ocean
Waves drown, they drown all you've been
And you can't, you can't comprehend
Can it be now that love is motion
Love is motion
Over and over

Coming closer
Fading further away
All with the same glimpse of the unknown
As waves crash over and over
They drench your soul
They soak your soul
And you just don't know how deep

How deep this goes
