She spends too much time with herself every night
Fooling around with her fears
In the morning she mourns the decline of her mind
Drowning in a bottle of beer

It's too dangerous to think about What she might have been If she'd sung for salvation, if she'd danced on her dreams
Danced on her dreams

Now he don't know if he's a communist, a hedonist or a whore
Spent too much time ridin' on a white line to find the door
If he did and he opened it, he'd find those letters in the hall
He's too blind to read between the lines 'cause the writing's on the wall

But there's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow
'Cause tonight he's gonna blow it all away
He feels so twisted, he ain't ever gonna fix it He's just waiting for the light to shine on a brand new day

Let that light shine awhile

Well, I got ecstasy, but I need some company
You got that mystery, I need a plan
All I got is a compromise and a bag full of alibis
As empty as the bottle of whiskey in my shaking hands

But there's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow
'Cause tonight we're gonna blow it all away
We feel so twisted, we ain't ever gonna fix it We're just waiting for the light to shine on a brand new

There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah
There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah
There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah

There's gonna be peace in the valley, peace in the valley

There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah
There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah
There's gonna be peace in the valley tomorrow, yeah
'Cause tonight we're gonna blow it all away
