"Different Today"

He spent the week at his friends house
It had been ages since they'd been in touch
The weekend passed in a drunken haze
It felt good, like the old days

I lied, you're not so different today
Don't go not so far away
And without you my life is boring
Anyway

They went down to the station on Sunday
He felt sad as the train pulled away
He wished that it would never end
He knew he'd never see him again

I lied, you're not so different today
Don't go not so far away
And without you my life is boring
Anyway

I lied, you're not so different today
Don't go not so far away
I lied, you're not so different today
Don't go not so far away
