You're everything you need and so you fight,
You take them on your own until you die,
The wisdom in your breath comes much too late,
And everyone you see just gets a face,
In time, the words will come, they say, with faith,
But everything you see just turns you grey.

You're everything you need, but still suspicion holds
you tight,
You're everything you need, but still suspicion holds
you tight.

Well mind or care, decisions must be made,
Who's side who's on, the question should be saved,
Your purpose comes and nothings left in sight,
And it's clear, they sing, that nothing here feels right,
Now everyone's afraid cos no one moves,
Not towards anything that's anything to you.

You're everything you need, but still suspicion holds
you tight,
You're everything you need but still suspicion holds you tight.

The righteous come and bleed you from the bone,
It's all they ever wanted from your soul,
Then every man's intentions are no more,
It's all you'll ever get if you let go.

You're everything you need, but still suspicion holds
you tight,
You're everything you need, but still suspicion holds
you tight.
