In the streets of this once great city
Conquered again as it once was before
Topped not by bombs nor armies
Impossible promises, impossible dreams

A vision appeared in the dark of the night
A calling to take this great mans life
My heart was struck by fear
Where do my actions lead
He held the world in his hand
And what will come to be
What will come to be

I read the news of this once great man

Who took this world with hardly a fight
An illusion of powers reality
Just as easy can be taken away

Destiny has brought me to this end
A life is ended by my hand
And when the truth is finally known
I pray the world will understand
I pray the world will
Pray the world will understand

What will this world be
And what will this world be
