I, I was surprised
I must say, I was surprised
Surprised you stayed
Only to be betrayed by the one you Gave all your love and trust to

How could I let go?
I caught a glimpse of your immense soul
Like you were dancing to Northern Soul with just one glance
How well you know

There she goes, a little heartache
There she goes, a little pain
Oh, make no mistake she sheds her skin like a snake
On the dirty road to fame
(Dirty road to fame, my love)
There she goes, a little heartache
There she goes, a little pain
Make no mistake she sheds her skin like a snake
You're gonna walk that plank again
(Walk the plank again, my love)

I was to implore, was to implore
That you forget all that you saw
When you come through my door
And from your bag you pulled out more skag than I'd ever seen

How could I let go?
Since I caught a glimpse of your white plimsoles
Twisting and turning to Northern Soul
Just one glance, everybody knows

There she goes, a little heartache
There she goes, a little pain
Make no mistake she sheds her skin like a snake
On the dirty road to fame
(Dirty road to fame, my love)

There she goes, a little heartache
Oh there goes, alot of pain

Now make no mistake, she sheds her skin like a snake
You're gonna walk that plank again
(Walk the plank again, my love)
Oh, there she goes a little
There she
There she
