The stage is set, another show must go on
The spotlight's burning down into my face
The drummer sits up high upon his rostrum
Guitarists play, each other face to face

And when it's over, I'll stop and wonder and never understand
'Cause leaving this was never in my plans
And when I'm playing all I see is things you'll never find
Flowing rivers passing through my mind

Deceiving and receiving was my pastime
To every girl who liked my written lines
They'd think that any moment I'd be their guy
But crying never justified my lies, oh no

And next time 'round will be the same, they never understand
That hurting them was never in my plans
Then my songs will slow like passing clouds, something in each line
Flowing rivers passing through my mind

I've gotta go, I've finished what I came for Playing every city, state to state
Singing every town that learned to like me
Modest payments paid for what I ate

Ah, you're standing there, tears in your eyes, you once called me a man
And loving you was never in my plans
We'll go together, you and I, 'til we both find
Flowing rivers passing through my mind

We'll go together, you and I, 'til we both find
Flowing rivers passing through my mind
