(by thorne, lewis & gibb) 1969

Clouds grew grey when you refused to stay,
The falling rain joined in with tears upon my chin.
I met you, it was a rendezvous,
No other heart, I knew could give me love so new.

Years soon came between you and i,
Time passed by, someone else caught your eye.
Heavens of clouds up above whizzing by,

I look around, you're not to be found.

I could cry with thoughts of your goodbye,
Our hearts would always fly as high as ev'ry sky.
Now I stand inside an empty land
And ev'rywhere I go no sweeter heart I'll know.
