Must be a thousand million times
I've seen your face in laughter
Every time meant something new to me
But being broke and living low
I sensed what you were after
And time has said, "Get out before you bleed"

Oh, with every second glance you killed my pride
And every second tear
You held my life in your hands
And you never knew of all the things you could do
If you wanted to

Too many looks in your eyes, breaking my heart
And I don't wanna start fighting
With words that somebody heard
Tell me what they really mean to you

Too many thoughts on your mind
And it's easy to see you're thinking of me
And still you remain so perfectly sane
Too many looks in your eyes

I've often thought of things I'd do if I had money
But money's always been my dream to me
But every time I saw that face
Those riches never mattered
To have you close was wealth enough for me

Imagination stopped, where life began
And I had always felt a little lost
In your love with no way through
But you could pull me through if you wanted to

Too many looks in your eyes, breaking my heart
And I don't wanna start fighting
With words that somebody heard
Tell me what they really mean to you

Too many thoughts on your mind
And it's easy to see, you're thinking of me
And still you remain so perfectly sane

Too many looks in your eyes

With every second glance, you killed my pride
And every second tear, you held my life in your hands
And you never knew of all the things you could do
If you wanted to

Too many looks in your eyes, breaking my heart
And I don't wanna start fighting
With words that somebody heard
Tell me what they really mean to you

Too many thoughts on your mind
And it's easy to see you're thinking of me
And still you remain so perfectly sane, oh yeah

Too many looks in your eyes, breaking my heart
And I don't wanna start fighting
With words that somebody heard, yeah oh
