Another year gone by, you know
What they say about time, it flies
Boy stands at manhood's gate
Trying his best to separate
The truth from the lies
You are me when I was you, I know
What your going through, I've
Scaled that wall
Your trying to find a life that's Yours, but it's hard to keep Yourself pure when those
Around you fall

I, cry, when I pray for you

Don't waste it all away
Don't believe the things they
Say to you
Real love is worth the wait
Don't waste it all away

Another pretty face, but the Makeup can't erase the scars
And the pain
She sits alone and cries, all he
Left her were the lies
And the shame
You thought that he would love
You more, but love was not behind
That door and now you're empty
True love forgives mistakes
You've made, takes you back when
You have strayed, fills you up
And sets you free

I, cry, when I pray for you

Don't give it all away
Don't believe the things they
Say to you
Real love is worth the wait

Don't waste it all away
I, cry, when I pray for you

True love is more than touch or
Feel, with out the spirit the flesh
Cannot understand God's design.
The right and wrong of it is sure
He only want you to remain pure
So you can have the deepest part
Of you to share.
