She wears her dress high
As high as she pulls her hat down low
She's seeking out the places
Those other people can't go

And hold her
And touched by the sea
She's walking on water when she walks in her sleep She's dragging me through places, I didn't want to be seen

She's a liar
As, I am a thief
Because of you, I came
Because of you, I leave

I wanna know
I wanna know why the monsters that hurt you so
Don't look like those things that we battled so long ago
And I thought I did my part when I pulled you out of there
That night you left bruise marks on my wall

You are my liar
So I will be your thief
Because of you, I came
Because of you, I leave

Be calm, baby
We are home now
