He said "John I do believe I've seen Virginia to the end
I find myself about as far as I can go
It culminated late last night
From pointed fingers starting fires that burned since years ago
We've fallen out of love."

hate to hear
Just shut your mouth and then the truth comes stinging clear
You find you're wrong and it's your problems all along
And then you love someone, but not 'til then
You love someone"

Haunted by computer screens
The world around him
Grass was greener on the other end
She could see it in his eyes
The love had left and it had died
And she was left that way
With nothing left for her to say

So she said "Love, you learn to love to feel the words you hate to hear
Just shut your mouth and then the truth comes stinging
clear
You find you're wrong and it's your problems all along
And then you love someone but not 'til then
You love 'til then you love."

It took love to finally see the pointed fingers back at me
A silent mouth, a broken heart, a sword retired.
A silent mouth, a broken heart, a sword retired.

So a sword retired
It's a sword retired
Yes a sword retired
It's a sword retired

hate to hear
Just shut your mouth and then the truth comes stinging
clear
You find you're wrong and it's your problems all along
And then you love someone but not 'til then
You love someone"
