I don't have too much to say
Except for a change in whether
Today is the same as yesterday
Stuck in a sophomore effort
(there's so much I don't know)

Don't know why we fear the change
When we've only just begun
Because with fear comes hope the same
And tomorrow's gonna come

There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know

And you find you're holding on
To everything you know
But the strength to move beyond
Is found in letting go

There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know

It's like learning how to drive on a crowded highway
Whether this dies or stays alive, I did it my way
I know that the adventure's gone
It's the second time I find
That what is lost is replaced by grace and I find

There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know
There's so much I don't know
