Across the sunrise
And covered by windows and blinds Away from wandering eyes as they struggle for something to see Hiding, don't want anybody to find them and try to deprive them
Of all of those magical breaths that they breathe.

Around the corner and up the elevator a floor Between the smoke and the movement she uses the music to see Hidden, but living and breathing, a lesson, a vision, If only they'd listen they'd see

There'd be no more running away
And no more missing that midnight train
They go so much faster now days
And good thing cause you need to be home before light
It won't be easy at first but you'll have to get used to it sometime
It's only for the rest of your life.

We've come to help you decide How to spend the rest of your days and nights
We understand that you've tried it before and it froze you alive
And if you could have only been free you'd have listened to reason Before you had wasted our time

Well it's going to be different this time

There'll be no more running away
No more missing that midnight train
They go so much faster now days
And good thing cause you need to be home before
It won't be easy at first but you'RE BOUND to get used to it sometime
It's only for the rest of your life
Only for the rest of your life
