Candy was the kind of girl
Who thrived on rollercoasters
And would take you home
For supper in a flash
She'd make you into something
You are not; a little better
Then the one you used to be
Would kind of clash

Candy was the kind of girl
Who'd go to see a movie
And kept laughing
After everyone had gone
She'd serve you milk and cookies
And she'd whisper: "You're the sweetest"
And you'd feel ashamed
For thinking: "I'm the one"

That's what Candy would do
She'd smile just for you
That's what Candy would do
She would cut you in two

Candy was the kind of girl
Who'd wear a dozen dresses
She kept peeling off the layers
Through the day
She would give you stickers
She'd play cards a little smaller
And she'd whisper:
"This will get you on you way"

That's what Candy would do
She'd smile just for you
That's what Candy would do
She would cut you in two
That's what Candy would do
She'd smile just for you
That's what Candy would do
She would cut you in two

That's what Candy would do
She'd smile just for you
That's what Candy would do
She would cut you in two
That's what Candy would do
She'd smile just for you
That's what Candy would do
She would cut you in two
