

Backseat Goodbye

"Smile"

alarm clock's going off again.
you're screaming in a telephone.
i wish you were somewhere else.
or maybe i should just move out.
another state, some suburb of a town.
somewhere in north dakota.
got an idea and a map.
two dollars and a photograph.
of a kid... it's me, i'm under a dinosaur blanket.
in my old house.
i like it, it makes me smile.
i like you, you make me smile.
this is my song.
sing it to myself and nothing can go wrong.
for a second i know the world's alright, it's alright.
tired eyes wide awake again.
think i might like to take a swim.
in the pool where we used to kiss the sun's hands all day.
you used to run from the dark.
i still do, i haven't changed a lot.
my voice grew a little deeper but my shirt size's still the same.
