Well he said this and she said that
She called her mama and he blew his stack
He gave her hell and she gave it right back to him to

Well anger clouded his mind last night
But things look clear on the first day light Sqiunts through the curtains and he opens his eyes to that hotel room

Yeah on the first day you wake up alone
That's the first day when it all hits home
And you can slam the door
You can scream and shout
Til the lights come on in the neighbours house
You can get in your car
Make some tracks
Swear your never coming back
But you'll learn there's a difference between going and gone
Yeah On the first day you wake up alone

Well she's sitting there in that sunny little kitchen
In emotional wreckage and some broken dishes
Surrounds her and she wishes she could see his face

Now did he do something crazy she knows how he gets She's wondering where he went when he left
And how'd they ever get in this mess in the first place

On the first day you wake up alone

Ain't that the first day when it all hits home
And you can slam the door
You can scream and shout
Til the lights come on in the neighbours house
You can get in your car
Make some tracks
Swear your never coming back
But you'll learn there's a difference between going and gone
Yeah On the first day you wake up alone

He pulls in the driveway
She runs to the door
He say's i'm sorry baby
She say's what for

On the first day you wake up alone
Ain't that the first day when it all hits home
On the first day you wake up alone
Ain't that the first day when it all hits home
And you can slam the door
You can scream and shout
Til the lights come on in the neighbours house
You can get in your car
Make some tracks
Swear your never coming back
Never coming back
Til the first day you...you wake up alone

Well he said this and she said that...yeah
Yeah on the first day
Yeah you wake up alone
