will love leave you senseless attached to your dreams in your bittersweet, selfish aroma paint you hysterical with your ideals in your own erotic coma will love leave you trembling alone in your bed caressed by your skin and your body scared of the lights of future sunsets regretting you ever had memory?

will love turn your shyness into verbal disgrace unable to lie or invent as pride equals pain, you harden your face your lips never spoke what they meant will love paint your eyes red consuming their faces hoping they would understand you watch as they're fading into different places still wishing you were one of them?
