Would you mind if I take of my glasses and turn blind for the rest of the night Would you put them back on in the morning if you're still here

I won't mind if you take of your glasses I'll put them back on when you're awake It's ironic that you can not use the most beautiful eyes that I've seen

There's something about you that I love Might be your fingers, your teeth, I don't know or the jokes that you tell after midnight when we're the only ones awake

And we laughed and we laughed and we laughed again
and we cried and we cried and we cried cause the secret love that we had
was tearing us apart

And my paintings were always important your were the very first one to see I counted sheep for a week cause I couldn't sleep Your reaction was a crossroad to me

We fell asleep just an hour before daylight we woke up by a cat in our bed It jumped in from our open window it scared the youth out of you and me

again
cause the secret love that we had
was tearing us apart
