Counting clocks in my head and time slips by
No words left to be said and wonder why
You're not here with me now, so I wonder when
Our eyes meet again would it need to be said
I need you

Nothing seems the same without you here
And the little things in life don't seem as clear
The smell of your sweet perfume still jumps in my room
So easy on me write these words for you

I wonder if this could be something you and me
Could work out and make it last a while
I want to be something you and me
Could always look back on and smile

As I lay alone I think of times
Like when you laugh with me and it gets me by Well you're not here with me now, so I wonder when
Our eyes meet again would it need to be said

I wonder if this could be something you and me
Could work out and make it last a while
I want to be something you and me
Could always look back on and smile
Yeah and smile

I want you here
These words so clear
This world don't care
Another day is coming

I want you here
These words so clear
This world don't care
Another day is coming

I want you here
These words so clear
This world don't care
Another day is coming

I want you here
These words so clear
This world don't care
Another day is coming
