There's a rebel child in every town
There's always that one who won't back down
You want you want you want change me
You want you want you want break me

I will live I will die in this world alone
Being feared being stoned by a mob of clones
And I don't accept your authority
There's a blooming flower in a garden of dust
There's a rebel child who's about to be born
So throw your stones throw your stones throw your stones

So what's my story
Reason for fighting
Not for the glory
But for the right
For the right
For the right
For the right to be

There's a rebel child in every town
There's always that one who won't back down
You want you want you want break me

I will live I will die in this world alone
Being feared being stoned by a mob of clones
And I don't accept your authority
There's a blooming flower in a garden of
dust
There's a rebel child who's
about to be born
So throw your stones throw your stones throw your stones
You want break me
