The plane touches down
The lounge fills up again
Retired couples from the mid-western USA
They blink in the foreign light
And admire each others shoes
I've seen a lot new shoes today

Should have let me know
That you weren't getting on your flight
You should have called me
So I wouldn't be calling you now

On this line you sound so strange
And I'm running out of change
Understanding but it feels like falling

Ngaire I'm not lying to you
Ngaire I've been trying to do
Right from the start
If you doubt what's in my heart
You can break it open
But be careful when you do
Inside there's a girl who looks like you

You knew I had to come here
You knew there was no work at home
You said you'd join me when the coast was clear
Now I take the escalator down
I get the bus back into town
I'm as free as the planes up in the air

Is that the sun? (Is that the sun?)
That dries me on you now (dries me you now)
And did it shine? (And did it shine?)
The day you changed you mind
Oh Ngaire, oh Ngaire

Oh Ngaire I'm not lying to you
Ngaire I've been trying to do
Right from the start
If you doubt what's in my heart
You can break it open

But be careful when you do
Inside there's a girl who looks like you

Ngaire, Ngaire
Inside there's a girl who looks like
(repeat)

Inside there's a girl who looks like you
Inside there's a girl who looks like you
Looks like you, looks like you
