

Bad Religion

"Someone To Believe"

Visit "Someone To Believe" on MotoLyrics.com

Dark, frozen, hibernation held at bay
As your mind left behind, lost another day
But then finally there's someone to believe

Antisocial boredom is all the rage
But the time comes when you gotta turn the page
And then finally there's someone to believe
And now you walk with confidence and ease

And there's no call to sell your soul
Or confess, or drop down to your knees

Who, what or where, made you change your mind?
Doesn't matter anymore 'cause you've seen a sign
And now finally there's someone to believe

Searching for the answer's a lonely quest
But the act is liable to bring out your best
And then finally there's someone to believe
And now you have a progress to proceed

And you find out the baggage that you discarded
You didn't even need, go

No one can deny your return to form
Irrespective of the morass, shame and scorn
But then finally there's someone to believe

Ready to emerge and direct your fate
As the self determination radiates
Because finally there's someone to believe
And now you walk with confidence and ease

And it feels like the spring equinox
After a long winter's sleep

Finally, there's someone to believe

Visit Bad Religion page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

