I called up yesterday and asked them what Did they think I should be
They turned to me to as as if to Ask if I would go away
I asked her did she know me
And if so then why was she so strange
I asked her did she know me
And if so then why was she so strange
Looking past the point I reached out for My final chance to be, instead of turning past
I vowed for this to be my very last
While a quiet laugh broke through things changed
And I began to dream
While a quiet laugh broke through things changed
And I began to dream
Dream - I know your every move
I've seen it all before and I'll keep on watching you
No need to thank me now I'm always there fore you
One day I'll stop to watch one day when I am stopping you
Yesterday - I reached out for what I should be It's nothing today but I never wanted anything to change
It's nothing today no turning back no we can't look away
It's nothing today still I never wanted anything to change
It's nothing
They called up yesterday and asked me what Did I think they should be
They had no chance to turn and look the other way
While a quiet laugh broke through things changed
And I began to dream
I asked her did she know me and if so
Then why was she so strange
Maybe now we'll look inside instead of helping place
The blame, while we have to chance let's finalize
This empty scene and say
