The most perfect silence is
When there is no need to speak
The most perfect silence is
When there's no need to explain

The most perfect moment is
When we just come from different circumstances
But the stream of lust flows
Into the same direction

The most perfect silence is
When there's no need of showing, something is true
When you see the same pictures
From another point of view

When there's no need to search the outside
No need to linger on
Not a single something left to distract you
No need to want

Don't you see, how I long, long
How I long, long
For that moment to come?
Don't you see, how I long, long
How I long, long
For that moment to come?

The most perfect silence is
When there's no need to speak
The most perfect silence is
When there's no need to explain

When there's no need to search the outside
No need to linger on
Not a single something left to distract you
No need to want

Don't you see, how I long, long
How I long, long
For that moment to come?
Don't you see, how I long, long
How I long, long

For that moment to come?
