Right now it's easy to see
This is not the way this was ever meant to be
These days turn to dust
As your words crumble in my ear
This makes no sense to me

You have become a shadow to me
Walking along the outskirts of my mind
This was never my intention
I thought that this one would last forever
Would last forever, forever

Gasping for air
As means to inhale
As you bled me dry
The tables have turned, and you have become the weaker one

The ending of your clutching to these memories
Look out your window
Watch the world pass by, when the fuck will you realize?
There is nothing you can do but make the best of it
This was never my intention

I thought that this would last forever
Would last forever, forever
Gasping for air as means to inhale
But you bled me dry surrounding my every move Surrounding my every move

This is a dawning of a new age, a new Chapter in my life
And this is just the beginning of my journey
The tables have turned and you have become the
weaker one

The ending of you clutching to these memories
Look out your window
Watch the world pass by
And this is just the beginning of my journey
