I'll never let you down, boy. I'll never let you go.
Your subtle hint of life is so innocent and scary.
So tell me that you're here, boy, she says, and if she knows,
When God took her with time, God made me quite alone.
It's like the universe has left me without a place to go.
Without a hint of light to watch the movement glow.
Where a song was slowly starting, your memory felt so
real.
At first against my will, that God invented chills.

Yeah I, I saw your ghost tonight. The moment felt so
real.
If your eyes stay right on mine, my wounds would start
to heal.

The kids are in a hurry, and I'm just full of fear.
The lights make bodies blurry; it's getting hard enough to hear.
It's like the evidence is cared for, and evidently clear.
If I never leave this dance floor, then I'll never leave you here.

Yeah I, I saw your ghost tonight. The moment felt so
real.
If your eyes stay right on mine, my wounds would start
to heal.
I felt your ghost tonight, and God, it felt like hell,
To know you're almost mine, but dreams are all I feel.

Yeah I, I saw your ghost tonight, it fucking hurt like hell,
I felt you here tonight, but dreams can't all be real.
I saw your ghost tonight, it fucking hurt like hell.
I felt you here tonight, but dreams can't all be real.
