Looking down into this reflection, reminds me of how things used to be,

Before the world took my soul, the innocence is just a dream. I am unclean,

I'll die trying to find the stars, to find myself in you is worth the pain.

We wear the same skin, we breathe the same air, my whole existence is you,

To never forget my gift of life, to always be there, donnn't let go. We talk

But we do not speak, do you even know me? Hear this voice. See this man

Standing before you, I'm still a child, trapped in this broken man, it hurts

Me to see what I have become, I am to weak to fight, please remember me.
