Forget about the fight to wear the crown of scars
Cause you've already won
Forget the pain and the tears behind you
Bury underneath your feet the remains
Of what's been left behind
Cause you've got a long, a long way to run
But now you dance the rest of the way
And you don't look back
Can you hear the angel singing
As you rise
Now you can fly away
And you don't look down now
And you laugh until you can't laugh any longer
As you watch your chains fall to the ground
Will you fall against the wall that you have built with your own hands
When you trip upon the thorns that you have tied your legs together with
When you walk upon the ice that you know you should not be walking
Why do you wonder why you fell through

Now you fly away
And you don't look down now
And you laugh until you can't laugh any longer
As you watch your chains fall to the ground
And now you laugh
And your tears
Smile down at your fears
From where you are
From way up here
You know nothing's ever looked so good
Nothing ever looked so good
But now you dance the rest of the way
You don't look back
Can you hear the angel singing
As you rise
Now you fly away
And you don't look down now
And you laugh until you can't laugh any longer
As you watch your chains fall to the ground
Now you fly away

And you don't look down now
And you laugh until you can't laugh any longer
As you watch your chains fall to the ground
