Bless me father I have sinned,
I'm not sure where to begin.
I won't name names of where I've been,
But I've been there and back again.

No Hail Mary's will save me,
You learn to live with memories,
Hey, slip this c-note up your sleeve,
Just stay inside until I leave.

I've been running, always running
Never had both feet on the floor.
I've been running, always running,
Now I ain't running anymore...

The hands of time they tick no more
Let darkness fall upon this door
No waves do wash up on this shore
I won the fight but lost the war.

I've been running, always running
Never had both feet on the floor
And I've been running, always running
Now I ain't running anymore.

Yeah there were those who I have loved
Who've given all and given up
I pushed your patience and my luck
It wasn't love I didn't trust
It wasn't you, or me, or us
You've shouldered if's, and and's, and but's
It's not the way, OK, I've said too much

And I've been running, always running
Never had both feet on the floor
I've been running, always running
Now I ain't running anymore.
