I stood up.
You stayed in your chair.
You didn't get it,
You even looked put out.
But I had no doubt
You'd see the change
And someday do the same.
That was quite awhile ago.
The days are getting shorter
They're expecting record lows
If you could hear me pray tonight
Would you be angry or surprised
To hear your name announced
Followed by a pause,
Or even tears
Like i've done for all these years
The days are getting shorter
I suspect it's gonna snow
What does it take to make you see
The love inside of me?
What does it take to make you see

The truth that I believe?
What does it take to make you see
The pain it's causing me?
Why can't you see?
The days are getting shorter
But I won't surrender hope
What does it take to make you see
The love inside of me?
What does it take to make you see
The truth that I believe?
Is there a stone i've left unturned?
Is there a way i've not explored?
What does it take to shake your world?
To turn you to my lord?
