Corner the beast, twist the knife in
Paint your face and paint your skin, no
Shatter the peace, there's a war to win
Paint your face and paint your skin, no
When you're in the, in the heart of darkness

Stare at the fire, feel the thrill
When you hear the drum and you can't stand still Man on a wire, you take a spill
'Cause the call of the wild calls you still
When you're in the, in the heart of darkness
When you're in the, in the heart

In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
When you're in the, in the heart (heart, heart)

(No-no-no-no-no) no more staying in tune
There is a wild child in the middle of you, no
Get on all fours and bay at the moon
No one understands what you do, whoa
When you're in the, in the heart

In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart (every other heart)
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart (every other heart)
In everyone there is a place for two people
In every heart there is another heart
