The elevator in the hotel lobby has a lazy door
The man inside is going to a hotel room He jumped out right after seeing just the very sight of me
Decided he better hike it to the second floor

It's temporary, this place I'm in I permanently won't do this again
My belongings scattered all across the hotel floor

An hour later I was thinking it over by the snack machine
I thought about you and a candy bar
An hour later melon gum stuck between my teeth
I fell asleep to the greatest movie of the year

It gets lonely for heavens sake
Was wondering only what did you do today

The world is spinning round to an old sad love song

It's coming down outside like I've never even seen before
I fell into some kind of sorry state But looking back now I think its finally time for me to laugh about it Get my things together and find something to say

Well I feel awful and I believe that time gets wasted in this misery
And darling I don't ever wanna come back home
