verse1

i probably should have told her the sky was falling or maybe that my car ran out of gas my grandma was sick, and i had to leave town right away, nah i don't care tell one more to fix the last one. that i never get back to the truth thinking to myself she would never found out that's what we do, that's how we do..

chorus

i wonder what she really thinks of me, should i have really told her everything but its too late cant take it back she will never look at me the same way again.. nooo i should have lied
'cause the truth made her set me free and now goodbye is more than just a word my honest just became my enemy maybe a lie would have made things right this time should have lied

verse 2

should have said it was the end of the world now sadly its my reality would she stay if i said i only had one day left, stay with me please dont leave. i wonder what she really thinks of me, i wish i wouldn't never said a thing, but its too late for that i dont think she is coming back and i will never look at truth the same again...
should have lied
'cause the truth made her set me free and now goodbye is more than just a word
my honest just became my enemy
should have lied

now am trying hard to convince my heart that everything will be ok, she said would never leave and i just cant believe she is gone and now i know i....

should have lied
my honesty just became my enemy maybe a lie would have made things right this time
and now goodbye promise myself next time i wont tell the truth cause if i knew what i know right now i would still be with you ohh
