I keep waiting for the moment to arrive
When the words I say get through to you
I need to keep this little dream of mine alive
But I need you too

I am One of Two
One of everything I thought I held true
And there's always room for another point of view
We are one all together
We are two, me and you

You won't see me you don't know me anymore
A million cracks and I keep falling through
I'm a step away from walking out the door
But you need me too

I am One of Two
One of everything I thought I held true
And there's always room for another point of view
We are one all together
We are two, me and you

I am One of Two
One of everything I thought I held true
And there's always room for another point of view
We are one all together
We are one all together
We are one all together
We are two, me and you
