Stared long into the sun until the black filled the skies
I turned it off I turned it on brought the light back to my eyes
I didn't want to be the one with my face against the wall
I didn't want to be the one who would stand to lose it all
It's like a bad trip with every step
A loose grip on every ledge
Picking myself up off the ground to fall down again
I rise up to take what's left
Exhaling every breath
Putting it all together to watch it fall apart again Stared long into the screen until the black filled my eyes
I turned it off I turned it on brought the moment down to size
I never thought I'd be the one to let it come apart like this
I never thought I'd be the one so blissful in my ignorance
It's like a bad trip with every step
A loose grip on every ledge
Picking myself up off the ground to fall down again
I rise up to take what's left
Exhaling every breath
Putting it all together to watch it fall apart again Break like the silence with a sound until it comes around
Break like the silence with a sound until it comes
A bad trip with every step
A loose grip on every ledge
Picking myself up off the ground to fall down again
I rise up to take what's left
Exhaling every breath
Pulling it all together to watch it fall apart again Fell face first!
Gone from bad to worse!
