Sometimes you'd call me on the phone sometimes I'd come round to your home I saw the love that's in our eyes you kissing me was a surprise and if there's a chance that we could be like this you'd tell me I was yours this was the way I hoped, I'd be your man but somehow, its not enough now I'm looking at you face isn't Broma a crazy place and just when our hands became apart you went and broke my only heart all of the times I spoke to you when some silly things were never true I wondered how we'd make it through you noticed things were wrong with you and how could you take your-self away from me expect me to live sometimes the things you are now wanting more is the one thing I cant give

now you never call on the phone now I never come round your home
