September skies
Funny how that memory never dies
And when that first leaf falls
Days turn cold, nights grow long
Like an old Sinatra song
And every year right about this time
I wind up here wishing that the winds of fate
Would bring you back to me
Beneath September skies
I should've known better
That to count on the weather
Summer's long gone
Still holdin' on
A fool pretending that love's never-ending
With the first sign of fall I still recall
September skies
The autumn melody clouds my eyes

And I'll never see why you're gone
Days turn cold, nights grow long
And I dream all alone
Beneath September skies
I should've known better
That to count on the weather
Summer's long gone
Still holdin' on
A fool pretending that love's never-ending
With the first sign of fall I still recall
September skies
The autumn melody clouds my eyes
And I'll never see why you're gone
Days turn cold, nights grow long
And I dream all alone
Beneath September skies
