Do we want it that badly? Are we waiting to say?

You lost the drive that led you here. You disengage.
The stem is cut right from the throat and softly put on ice.

That's right the world has let you down. Replaced our lives. Autonomous inside. it's how the lips become defiled with residue from trying to spit this one out.
You're so sure it's not the way you went about this. You make a mark for everyday that slips away.

She said all we have is time. Do we need this that badly? She said all we have is time. Do we need this that badly?

She said I'm not the only one. It turns out when all is said and done what lies under a stolen tongue. Do we need this that badly?

Don't try to speak.

Looks like you're wound up in these cords. They pulled us tight for reasons infantile. it's symbiotic hate you feed. The more it drags the more it bites it's teeth down. So far you break the surface of the ocean Entangled in the throws of twisted waves. Please, please articulate. Please, please just swim through.

She said all we have is time. Do we need this that badly? She said all we have is time. Do we need this
that badly?

She said I'm not the only one. It turns out when all is said and done what lies under a stolen tongue. Do we need this that badly?

Welcome comforts become worries. Jackals prowling through the nursery.

She said all we have is time. Do we need this that badly? She said all we have is time. Do we need this
that badly?

She said I'm not the only one. It turns out when all is said and done what lies under a stolen tongue. Do we need this that badly?

You're so sure it's not the way you went about this. You make a mark for everyday that slips away.
