

Broken-Hearted Janitors

"Kissing Sadie Miller"

Visit "Kissing Sadie Miller" on MotoLyrics.com

There's this girl I used to know
She lived in the blue house
Right up the road
This girl, this girl and I
Were friends for forever
So we gave it a try

I remember the green grass
And the rain in the air
I remember her dress
And the scent of her hair

I was kissing Sadie Miller
In the backseat of my car
I should've known young love
Never goes too far

There's this cute little girl
Who wore flowers in her hair
Around strands she used to twirl
This girl was so pretty and turned my head
Until she got a call from the big city

I remember the field
Where we went that day
I remember her blue eyes
And how I held her that way

I was kissing Sadie Miller
In the backseat of my car
I should've known young love
Never goes too far

There's something about the summertime
When you're young and naive
There's somethings that are always fine
And after all I've seen, I'll always believe

That Sadie, just maybe, loved me

And That maybe it was Sadie
That showed me
How to be a man,
And she made me understand
When she held my hand

I remember the green grass
And the rain in the air
I remember her dress
And the scent of her hair

I was kissing Sadie Miller
On that summer day
I should've known that young love
Never fades away
Never fades away
Never fades away

Visit Broken-Hearted Janitors page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.