I used to hang out at the Ricochet.
Thursday nights were good, ladies drink for free.
I should have known I was just another victim of a marketing scheme.
Guys wearing green leather pants,
Doing laps around the floor where we danced.
I'm always game for a little conversation.
But Mister, that don't mean that you can jump all over me and my...

CHORUS

Rose colored glasses.
They only see what they wanna see
And my heart always crashes
Without my rose colored, rose colored glasses.
With all the noise in the background, he says:
What are you doing here all by yourself?
Why can't a woman have a drink alone without crying
for help?
He says: Oh no no no no, that's not what I mean!
Then he spills his drink on my new blue jeans.
You think I'd be just a little more cynical.
But love don't come easy, so for now I'll just wear my...

CHORUS

Rose colored glasses.
They only see what they wanna see
And my heart always crashes
Without my rose colored, rose colored glasses.
They only see what they wanna see
And my love can turn to ashes
Without my rose colored, rose colored glasses.
Just show me love and I'll be alright.
I've heard every line so don't waste my time.
And if these men are any indication of what's going on,
Then I'm keeping them on, I'm keeping them on, my...
