Sun comes up on another day but things are not the same as yesterday life is not what it used to be lives were lost because of jealousy a sad page written in our history what good can come from this misery?
lives were lost because of jealousy though the tears wash away the pain sorrow still remains a million candles light up the night through the darkness I see the light life is not what it used to be we stand united to face our destiny.
