Where the cold wind blows
Tomorrow never knows
Where your sweet smile goes Tomorrow never knows

You and me
we've been standing here,
my dear
Waiting for that time to come
Where the green grass grows
Tomorrow never knows

In the field your long hair flows Down by the tail end of the tracks Beneath the water tower
I carried you on my back Over the rusted spikes of that highway of steel When no more thunder sounds
Where the turn goes
Tomorrow never knows

Well he who waits for the day's riches will be lost
In the whispering tide
Where the river flows
Tomorrow never knows
